

Maria N. Gamaletsou

Biographical Outline

Dr. Maria Gamaletsou, M.D., Ph.D., M.P.H., graduated “Summa Cum Laude” from the Medical School of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece. She completed Internal Medicine training at the Athens University Hospital Laikon and the New York-Presbyterian Hospital, Weill Cornell Medical Center of Cornell University. She completed a 2-year fellowship in Infectious Diseases at the Athens University Hospital Laikon.

She completed her Ph.D. thesis at the Athens University Medical School and a Master in Public Health at the School of Public Health, Athens, Greece. She served for two years as Specialist Registrar in two UK hospitals: the National Aspergillosis Centre, University Hospital of South Manchester, and the St James’s University Hospital, Leeds. For 4 years, she served the Hellenic NHS at the Athens University Hospital Laikon as Senior Consultant in the ER.

She is a member of the Infection Prevention and Control Committee (IPC) at the Athens University Hospital Laikon. She is an Assistant Professor in Internal Medicine and Pathophysiology at the Athens Medical School, and Coordinator of the series of lectures ‘Pathophysiology’ for the 3rd-year medical students of the Medical Degree of the University of Athens.

She has been teaching in various undergraduate and postgraduate programs at the Medical School of Athens since 2012. She is an invited speaker at numerous Greek and International Conferences or Seminars. She is assigned as a reviewer to over 20 peer-reviewed international journals. She is a sub-investigator (SI) on various Phase III funded clinical research studies in the therapeutic area of infectious diseases and, more recently, a principal investigator (PI) in funded clinical research studies of infectious diseases. She has 70 publications in peer-reviewed journals.

She is a founding member of the International Osteoarticular Mycoses Study Consortium.